ANOTHER KANSAS TRAGEDY. Particulars of the Wife Murder and Suicide

on the Hornamann Farm-Result of a Family Quarrel. PITTSBURGH, Kan., June 8.—The Hornamann farm, six miles northeast of this city, where the horrible wife murder and surede occurred early Wednesday morning, consists of 240 acres under a high state of cultivation, the grain fields clear of weeds, the fences in good repair, the large orchards in a healthy condition, and frugal farmer. Some fifty curious neighbors gathered the Pittsburgh relief committee rests with on the first alarm and were wandering about in a sort of dazed condition, relating in an undertone their many experiences with the man who for seventeen years had industriously labored in their midst and was then hanging a ghastly corpse in the barn a few yards away. The front room, with the exception of a child's crib, was destitute of furniture. On the bed lay the body of the murdered wife and mother, dressed only in night clothes. The back also showed bruises which might

Beside the bed in the little crib was sleeping the one-year-old baby girl, and in the adjoining room slept the seven and three-year-old boys, and above the kitchen slept the eleven-year-old Emma and her two sisters, aged nine and five. The coroner's jury rendered a verdict of murder and suicide for causes unknown. The generally accepted theory is that after retiring the couple became involved in a quarrel over some trivial matter and that in the heat of passion the husband harder than he intended, and fearing exposure and punishment decided to complete the crime and then hang himself. The Opinion of an Expert as to Its Safety and Proper Construction. JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 8.-A. M. Wellington, one of the most noted civil engineers of the country, and H. P. The efforts to flood | nearly two feet lower in the middle than at the ends. It should rather have been the south were utterly without effect. The crowned in the middle which would have flames leaned across Marion street and in concentrated the overflow, if it should occur, at the ends instead of the center. Had the break begun at the ends, the cut of the water would have been so gradual that little or no harm might have resulted. Had the dam been at once cut at the ends when the water began running over the center the sudden break of the dam would have been at least greatly diminished, possibly prolonged, so that little harm would have resulted. The crest of the old dam had not been raised in the reconstruction of 1881.

Wellington said that no engineer of known and good standing for such work could possibly have been engaged on it, since in the particulars mentioned it violated the most elementary and universally understood requirements of good practice. He did not believe that any other dam of equal height had ever been constructed in this country wholly of earth without some kind of special protection against leakage or abrasion by water in the original dam indicated that it was made of about half earth and half rock. but if so there was little evidence of it in merely a skin on each face, with more or posed the entire water front would go, but 1 inside slope, 1% to 1 outside slope, out was about one foot below the standing intact since 1881 must be ascribed, as no engineer of standing would have ever tried to so construct it. The fact that the dam was a reconstructed one after over twenty years' abandonment made it especially hard on the older part of the dam to withstand the pressure of the water. At South Fork dam the community is in wild state of excitement as a result of the flood.
